

Abstract

A communication system includes a data concentrator computer, a gateway device for communicating with the data concentrator computer, a 5 first mobile data acquisition device communicating with the gateway device, and a second mobile data acquisition device communicating with the gateway device. The gateway device allows direct communication between the first and second mobile data acquisition 10 devices without communication with the data concentrator computer.